Lucky Clucker 500's September blog

Lambs, lambs and more lambs! It must be lambing season? Such the cutest little things, but noisy as heck, and more every day! My favourite dirt hill has been taken over by these little guys. We have put a lot of work into digging holes and tunnels and they think it's a good place for a nap! They also get to stay in the hay shed every night during this wild and woolly weather. Oh boy I would love to get in there and scratch around in all the hay and make a cosy nest or two. Hmm... need to hatch an escape plan.

But that's not for us at the moment. We are having the time of our lives in the mud. It's everywhere. Our muddy feet take it into the nesting boxes and leave foot prints on our eggs. Extra cleaning work for the egg collectors. A fun game. We also have water fountains springing up out of the ground to form little flowing creeks. Dirty, muddy water, I mean, who would want to drink clean rain water from the water dispensers when there is Wild Water available running everywhere.

Tension in the air this week when the tractor was pulling us out of the wonderful quagmire we had created in our paddock. Slow and steady went the tractor as our trailer slid from side to side nearly taking out the gate post as we sank like the Titanic down to the axle in the mud. The tractor, never missing a beat, slow and steady, towing us to higher ground. Awesome fun. I am really enjoying this out door experience. I could see myself standing on the front of the trailer, wings outstretched like in the movie with a big strong Rooster holding me safe. A Rooster like "Fog Horn Leghorn" maybe. Oooh...it's stuff that a girl's dreams are made of.

Chow my lovely's, Lucky Clucker 500 over and Out there for adventure!! Jindi Free Range Eggs

In August Lilia Van Gelt's paintings will fill Red Tree Gallery Above: Lilia holds 2 of her works (see p5 for more information on Laurie's recent adventures)

Nangara Notes – Happy Wattle Day

1 September is national Wattle Day, the day on which we are encouraged to think about, or learn more about, one of Australia's most iconic plants.

The Acacia genus is the largest floral genus in Australia with over 1000 species of which most are endemic to this country. The Golden Wattle, Acacia pycnantha, is the floral emblem of Australia. A sprig of Golden Wattle appears in the background of the Commonwealth Coat of Arms – not very botanically correct mind you. Many of our national sporting teams use the green and gold of the Wattle as the team's colours. Our early settlers often made temporary huts of Wattle and daub. Australia once had a thriving 'tan-bark' industry in which the bark from Wattle trees was dried, crushed and mixed with water. The resultant 'tanins' were used in the leather industry. The leftover bark was often used as a footpath surface, hence the term 'tan' for the track around the Botanic Gardens in Melbourne

Wattles are legumes - they have bacteria in their roots that fix nitrogen from the atmosphere, making nitrogenous compounds available to other plants in the vicinity. The seeds of many Wattles are nutritious and today are often used in food products such as flour, flavouring, ice cream, marinades, etc.

There are several species of Wattles flowering at present in Nangara Reserve. The tall Silver Wattles provide a brilliant splash of yellow at canopy level, whilst down lower you may come across some Spike Wattles and Prickly Moses.

Jindivick Progress Association – Annual General Meeting

Come and hear Cr Tricia Jones speak on the various projects planned for the town. This is your chance to ask questions and gain information. All are most welcome to join us on Monday 16 September at 7:30pm

Musker's at Broughton Hall

The nursery and garden will be open from 14 September to 17 November, Thursday to Sunday 10 am till 4 pm. In early September a range of bulbs, magnolias, and peonies are flowering. Early October is cherry blossom time; a stunning time to celebrate the new season in the garden.

Late October to mid-November is high spring, so many roses feature at this time of year, as the garden is in full bloom. There is something different to see every day in the garden throughout the spring season.

The Nursery will be open right through to Christmas and is now full of amazing stock, so call in for a wander.

Laughter Yoga. So, what is it?

Laughter Yoga was developed in India by a Yoga teacher who realised the inherent value of laughter in the healing of illness, and the relieving of pain. In Laughter Yoga, there is no embarrassment, no pain, and you do not have to stretch the body into position. What makes it yoga is the mild stretching and the deep breathing.

What do you need to bring to a laughter yoga session? Comfy clothes, a water bottle, maybe a yoga mat for end-of-session relaxation and YOURSELF. You can come to one session to give it a go. By turning up to one, you are not making a commitment to attend all sessions.

Why is Faye doing it? Well she says she just loves to laugh, and realised she was not laughing enough anymore, and thought there may be others out there with the same feelings.

She will not be running the group continuously, but will run it from time to time in the supper room at the Hall. There a few more sessions in this run, so if you would like to try it out we might see you one Tuesday soon at 11.00am.

Six Jindi Jems met at Misty Hills Cafe in August and decided to go see the Terracotta Warriors at the National Gallery in Melbourne on 2 September. (if trains are running) All welcome. Times etc to be finalized. For details please call Maz on: 0447491502

Drouin West Fire Brigade

This summer is shaping up to be hot and dry, with fire-restrictions likely to come into force earlier than usual. For many residents, the memory of the March Bunyip bushfires where many local evacuated to safety will still be fresh and others still remember Black Saturday. Perhaps you are beginning to think about what would you do if another fire threatens this summer? Now is a good time to reassess your bushfire plan.

If you have an existing Bushfire Plan or you need to start from scratch, book in for the Jindivick, Oct 27 CFA Community Bushfire workshop at the Drouin West Facebook Event page, or RSVP to secretary@dwrfb.org.au

To help residents prepare and plan for bushfire threat, your local CFA brigade is trying a new approach. For the first time, we are running a large, community bushfire planning exercise at the end of October. This interactive forum is designed specifically for residents of Jindivick, Drouin West and surrounding areas. On Sunday, October 27, starting at 10 am at the Jindivick Cricket Grounds, Kydd Parke Reserve, the forum will work through a specific fire-threat exercise. It will be very hands-on and practical and will be facilitated by CFA experts. Drouin West Fire Brigade members will be on hand to answer your questions and there will be an opportunity to book a personal Property Advice Visit to your place if you need more detailed support in developing your bushfire plan. We hope to see you there SAVE THE DATE 27 October - CFA Community Bushfire Workshop

Jindivick Landcare congratulates to the Jindivick Rabbit Action Group who just received a Baw Baw Shire Community Environment grant for the purchase of 8 rabbit trap cages. (see photo below) The cages are humane, safe and easy to use and no poisons are involved. They are the preferred trap that councils, zoos, sanctuaries, wildlife researchers and pest controllers use. They are available to all paid up members and will be used to trap some of those pesky pests. Thanks to Baw Baw Shire for their support. Local artist, Laurie Collins, recently attended the 1st International Fine Arts Exchange Workshop and Exhibition in Danang, Vietnam.

He was one of 25 international artists involved and was away from 25 July until 4 August.

Laurie said that one of the most joyful parts of the trip was meeting artists from different countries and interacting at a social and professional level.

As well as being shown tourist spots, the artists were taken to a new hotel where they painted and sculpted works. Laurie made one large and five small pieces, mainly using recycled metal.

After 3 days of artists creating, an exhibition of the works was set up at Danang Fine Arts Museum. When the show closes the artworks will become part of the Ministry of Culture's collection.

You can read more about Laurie's adventures in his diary of the event at www.lauriecollins.com.au, under "about Laurie Collins."
