

Spring continues in Jindivick, despite the driest September for 100 years. Nangara birds are nesting, farmers are making silage, (watch out for those slow moving tractors and carts) and the country side is looking its best. Our local gardens are bursting with spring foliage and flowers.

October visitors to Broughton Hall were most enthusiastic about the beautiful garden. We are lucky that it will be holding open days when the roses are at their best - on 3rd and 4th November. Celebrate our glorious spring at 125 Palmer Rd, Jindivick. Entry is $20/person Ph. 0417 056 110 for further information.

Gardivalia Open Gardens continues on 27 and 28th October. You can marvel at these Jindivick gardens: Bayview Gardens, Makindye (Nyumba Yaffe) and Laurie Collins Sculpture Garden. Details at <http://www.gardivalia.com.au>

Not to be outdone Baw Baw artists are also celebrating spring as part of the Open Studios West Gippsland scheme. Local participants include Sue Acheson (Tarago Pottery), Laurie Collins (Red Tree Studio), Phil Henshall (The Studio) and Gary Miles (Bradley Hall). For full details go to <https://openstudioswestgippsland.com.au>

And, as Nikki Cadzow said, "What a fabulous first Jindivick Country Market." There were 38 stalls (lots of new ones), great weather, and many visitors. The next market is on 3rd November, with even more stalls. Time to get some unique Christmas presents, stock up the pantry and expand your garden – and of course catch up with the locals!

Nangara Notes – Flowering Now

Report by Peter Ware, Friends of Drouin's Trees

Clematis aristata, 'Old Man's Beard' or Mountain Clematis, is well in flower now. World wide there 200 species of Clematis of which six species are endemic to Australia.

Clematis aristata is well distributed through the wetter gullies and hillsides of the eastern half of Victoria. There are many types of clematis that have been propagated for the nursery trade and, provided care is taken to not allow it to 'strangle' other plants, it can be a valuable garden specimen, attracting butterflies and other insects and small honeyeaters.

Forest Boronia, Boronia muelleri is flowering right now and warrants a visit to the reserve just to see it and experience the aromatic foliage. Forest Boronia only occurs in a very few isolated localities in Victoria, Nangara Reserve being one. It is a shrub or small tree with soft foliage and beautiful pink and white flowers.

Again, there are nursery versions of Boronia muelleri available if you are prepared to hunt them down.

Another shade-loving shrub-tree, not quite in flower yet, worth visiting the reserve for, is the Victorian Christmas Bush, Prostanthera lasianthos. This is the largest of the native mint bushes, being a tall graceful shrub to medium tree, and is well represented within the reserve on both sides of the track just down from the main gate in Nangara Rd. As the common name suggests it mostly comes into flower just before Christmas and usually is well on show for Carols by Dappled Light on 9 December.

Baw Baw Shire 2018 Community Development Grants.

Jindivick Progress Association is very happy to be amongst 48 non-profit organisation, groups and associations across Baw Baw Shire awarded a Community Development Grant to assist with projects, programs, equipment and events. In Jindivick's case the award was for $1,000 to assist with administrative costs of the 2019 Jindivick Sculpture Show

Due to the anticipated busy time in Jindivick over the Cup Day weekend, please book ahead for your meal at The Caf'

Did you know.....?

The First Jindivick

General Store was established in 1889 by Norwegian Seaman Johann Tandberg and his wife Mary Tandberg (nee Sullivan) from their house in Jindivick. The house then became a post office store which was moved north of the Tarago in the same year.

The original building was demolished in 1959 and replaced with the current building you see today, which includes The Caf'

Clucker 357's October Blog.

Sunshine, sunshine and more sunshine. Needed to dig out the sunnies this week! Clucker 357 here keeping cool under the trampoline. (see photo above) A great local hangout with extra shade and water with all my buddies. Balancing on the edge of the yellow water trough is tricky but fun.

The trampoline is also a safe place to be when the those pesky Wedgies (eagles) start circling overhead. Our Magpie mates are always on the ball and escort them back to the bush. Magpies send out a warning cry that we recognize, and it sends us all running for cover. They don't realise that they are our besties by protecting the farm and their territory. Bye bye for now. Clucker, Jindi Free Range Eggs.

Jindivick Landcare Group

The Jindivick and Neerim District Landcare Groups combined to run a very interesting 'Water on Farms' field day on 17th Oct. 46 local farmers, community members and extension people attended the day at Neerim South. We enjoyed a range of speakers. Benita Kelsall from AGVIC talked about farm water requirements and how farmers can extend their water supplies in a dry year though reducing evaporation. Rob Sargent from Monash Uni talked about current research in the Tarago catchment to monitor faecal pollutants and determine sources and contributors (including; deer, human, livestock, birds, wombats etc). We were provided with some really interesting data and look forward to the final report. Andrew Stanton from Baw Baw Shire talked about septic tank options and maintenance, and Helen Barclay spoke about the important role of farm dams for biodiversity and methods used to determine biodiversity in farm dams through DNA sampling. We then visited the Neerim South wetland where Helen showed us how to sample using eDNA. This linked in perfectly with our farm dams DNA monitoring program. Finally Kristy Mills from Habitat Creations talked about different plants that are suited for wetlands and their purposes. All participants were given some plants for their properties. It was a great day and we thank Baw Baw Shire and Melbourne Water for assisting us to run the event.
